01 · BRAND RATIONALE

Rayalaseema itself is the brand.

The Rayalaseema map forms the core visual element, making the regional identity immediately recognizable without relying on conventional news symbols such as microphones, cameras, newspapers or television graphics.

SIMPLE AND BOLD

A strong silhouette is easier to recognize, remember and associate with a brand over time. It stays effective from a favicon or social profile up to broadcast graphics, studio branding and large-format displays.

LETTERING INSIDE THE MAP

The RSN lettering sits directly within the map, connecting the abbreviation to the region it represents. Map and wordmark are not separate elements; they work together as one visual identity.

RED AND WHITE

Red brings strength, energy, urgency and presence. White creates clarity, openness and balance. Together they make an identity that is both strong and clean.

BUILT TO GROW

The identity stays relevant as the channel expands into political conversations, interviews, podcasts and other regional media. It is rooted in Rayalaseema, not in one media format.

THE LONG-TERM INTENTION

The logo should become a visual symbol of Rayalaseema — remembered not only as a news channel, but as a recognizable regional media brand.

Rayalaseema + Media + Podcast + News

The channel will run podcasts, political interviews and regional cinema conversations alongside daily news. The master mark stays format-neutral; the content categories sit beneath it.

Two colours, one story.

Red Fire · Intensity · Fearlessness · Immediate response #E40202	White Peace · Clarity · The temperament of Rayalaseema #FFFFFF	Charcoal Support only. Type, rules, dark backgrounds. #201E1D

Peaceful by default, immediate under provocation. The palette is the brand argument, so no third brand colour is introduced.

The recommended master mark.

REGION	The Rayalaseema outline reads instantly to the local audience and needs no explanation.
MARK	RSN sits inside the region, so the abbreviation belongs to the map instead of being attached to it.
FRAME	The circle is the broadcast frame: it survives profile pictures, watermarks and end frames unchanged.
BAND	Telugu leads, English supports. The footer band is removable at small sizes.

One mark, both grounds.

The same construction reverses without redrawing anything. On red the region carries the white; on white the region carries the red. Nothing in the logo depends on a background it cannot control, which is what makes it safe over video.

Use on red

Bumpers, lower thirds, end frames.

Use on white

Documents, print, light thumbnails.

The circular family.

Square lockups.

Edge-to-edge formats for thumbnails, social posts and app tiles, where the frame is already square.

NAME BAND	REGION KNOCKOUT	STACKED

Horizontal and stacked.

Horizontal for website headers and banners.
Stacked where the space is taller than it is wide.

The mark without words.

Once the channel is known, the region and the three letters are enough. This is the version that does the daily work.

The vertical stack.

R, S and N set down the centre of the region. The letters read as a column rather than a label, which lets the map keep its full width.

Four rules keep it intact.

01

Keep the clear space

Half the height of the letter R on all four sides. Nothing enters it, including captions and channel furniture.

02

Respect the two grounds

Red on white, or white on red. Over footage, place the mark on a solid patch rather than on the picture itself.

03

Never redraw it

No stretching, rotating, outlining, shadows, gradients or added type. Scale the supplied files only.

04

Drop the band early

Below 128px the bilingual band stops being readable. Switch to the symbol instead of shrinking the badge.
